

Naim Syed . Jarvis Consulting

Hi, my name is Naim Syed. I am a Business Systems Analyst at Jarvis Consulting with a strong interest in data analytics and automation. I have a bachelor's in accounting from Toronto Metropolitan University and a diploma in Data Science from Lighthouse Labs. I have four years of experience working in the pension and benefits industry. Over my professional career, I have led projects to automate business processes by integrating ERP systems and building custom RPA solutions. I also enjoyed analyzing financial data to support decision making in policy development. During my personal time, I enjoy playing recreational sports and captaining a Sunday league basketball team.

Cluster Monitor [GitHub]: Developed a monitoring agent that retrieves hardware specifications and usage data for Linux machines to support resource planning. Collected data using Linux Shell scripts utilizing regex and bash commands to filter and parse through results. Stored data by leveraging a PostgreSQL database in a docker container. Automated scripts using crontab commands to provide real-time data.

Core Java Apps [GitHub]:

Highlighted Projects

UIPath Invoice Processor: Developed a custom RPA solution using UIPath to automatically generate cost centre breakdowns to allocate employee benefit expenses invoices. Collaborated with cross-functional teams using agile project management to effectively manage timelines across planning, development, and testing phases. The final product helped result in a reduction in manual administration time by 70%.

TMU Group RRSP Restructuring Project: Led a project to improve employee participation in the Group RRSP valued at >$17 million. I analyzed data on 50+ funds offered by TMU and established a risk profile based on the employee demographics and relevant contribution trends. I then finalized 20 top performing funds to recommend and presented my findings to key stakeholders with positive reception and moved forward with implementation.
